

How can you keep sitting there tellin' me that ya care? But every time I look around people are sufferin' - sufferin' in every way, in every day! Nah, nah, nah! We're the survivors yes the Black survivors...

Bob Marley

Mama D gives Congressman Chris Shays Holy Hell for Accusing Katrina Victims of Lying About Racism, Levee Bomb and Ethnic Cleansing

The enemies' Congressmen tried to cut Mama D off claiming her time was up, consequently she had to step strong putting them in their places. Mama D said she came up from "N'awlins with a list of complaints from fellow victims and she is going to read all of them and she did.

She attacked Chris Shays for accusing the victims of lying about police pointing M-16s at 5 year olds, of the perfectly fine housing projects that Bush had steel-plated and closed, of a LEVEE BOMB (and she went "BA-BOOOOOM!" right in the hearing room). she went on to tell of the concentration camp tactics and outright Ethnic Cleansing (murder).

One government clown in red face said "Could you please refrain from calling it a Concentration Camp." Evacuee Leah Hedges exclaimed "No I will not! They separated children from families, did not feed us or give us water, they let people die, a woman lost her baby. And all the while trucks are going past--with no supplies--just full of soldiers with M-16s. It was like Hitler." We have an estimated 1,000 children missing and we must find our children...

GENOCIDE !

It's been reported that the republicans tried to defend the actions of their hired guns by scoffing at the charges by the victims. But they could not stifle the charge of genocide. Both Cynthia McKinney and William Jefferson were there as the voices of the victims were heard for the first time.

They (the victims) took their story to Washington and the Black Survivors of Hurricane Katrina and the government executed urban warfare said that racism contributed to the slow disaster response, at times accurately likening themselves in the emotional congressional testimony to victims of genocide and the Holocaust. The comparison is inappropriate, according to Rep. Jeff Miller, R-Fla. "Not a single person was marched into a gas chamber and killed," Miller told the survivors. "They died from abject neglect," retorted community activist Leah Hedges. "We left body bags behind."

And because most of the bodies are missing or have been disposed of an obvious cover up is in-full-effect. Meanwhile, angry evacuees described being trapped in temporary shelters where one New Orleans resident said she was "one sunrise from being consumed by maggots and flies." Another woman said military troops focused machine gun laser targets on her granddaughter's forehead. Others said their families were called racial epithets by police.

The truth is seeping out as the people are coming forward to alert us all of not only governmental disregard but anti-Afrikan behavior that led to the unnecessary dying of our people. "No one is going to tell me it wasn't a race issue," said New Orleans evacuee Patricia Thompson, 53, who is now living in College Station, Texas. "Yes, it was an issue of race. Because of one thing: when the city had pretty much been evacuated, the people that were left there mostly was Black."

Many of the lawmakers were unmoved. One reportedly went on record saying "I don't want to be offensive when you've gone through such incredible challenges," said Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn. But referring to some of the victims' charges, like the gun pointed at the girl, Shays said: "I just don't frankly believe it." Patricia shot back "You believe what you want!"

The hearing was held by a Special House Committee, chaired by Rep. Tom Davis, R-Va., investigating the government's preparations and response to Katrina. It was requested by Rep. Cynthia McKinney, D-Ga., a member of the Congressional Black Caucus. She put it this way "Racism is something we don't like to talk about, but we have to acknowledge it." McKinney went on to say that "the world saw the effects of American-style racism in the drama as it was out played by the Katrina survivors."

The five white and two black lawmakers who attended the hearing mostly sat quietly during two and a half hours of testimony. Reportedly tempers flared when evacuees were asked by Rep. Jeff Miller, R-Fla., to not compare shelter conditions to a concentration camp. "I'm going to call it what it is," said Hedges. "That is the only thing I could compare what we went through to." In addition it has been reported that:

There are numerous witnesses to the explosion sound and divers have found a 30-foot crater at the bottom of the 17th St. Levee that flooded the 9th Ward, said the panel. In addition, they said historically, towns have blown levees upstream to prevent their own town from flooding, so blowing up levees was nothing new for Louisiana.

Epilogue: This was not a governmental warning shot, our people have been set up, allowed to die and murdered. Welcome to the 21st century. Its time to Ride or Die, we have much to do to prepare as they tighten their noose in this final phase of the Afrikan Holocaust.

we have institutions to build, crisis to prepare for, we must be able to defend ourselves and respond in emergency situations. Stay tune as www.whattheproblemis.com brings you the half that hasn't been told... Fire!

Del Jones is author of "The War Correspondent's Survival Guide #3 Katrina and the Black Holocaust." Available on this site.